379C Obligations and immunity of service providers

(1) An electronic communications network or access service provider shall not be criminally liable for providing access or transmitting information through its system if such service provider has not—

- (a) initiated the transmission; or

(b) selected the receiver of the transmission; or

(c) selected or modified the information contained in the transmission.

(2) The provision of access or the transmission referred to in subsection (1) shall include the automatic, intermediate and transient storage of the information transmitted in so far as this takes place for the sole purpose of carrying out the transmission in the communication network, and the information is not stored for any period longer than is reasonably necessary for the transmission.

(3) A hosting provider shall not be criminally liable for the information stored at the request of a user of the service if the hosting provider—

(a) promptly removes or disables access to the information after receiving an order from any court of law to remove specific stored illegal information; or

(b) in any other manner, obtains knowledge or becomes aware of any illegal information stored, promptly informs the appropriate authority to enable it to evaluate the nature of the information and if necessary, issue an order for its removal.

(4) Subsection (3) shall not apply where the user of the service is acting under the authority or the control of the hosting provider.

(5) Where the hosting provider removes the content after receiving an order pursuant to sub-section (3), no liability shall arise from the contractual obligations with the user with regard to the availability of the service.

(6) A hosting provider who fails to remove or disable access to information in terms of subsection (3) shall be guilty of an offence and liable to a fine not exceeding level 8 or to imprisonment for a period not exceeding two years or to both such fine and such imprisonment.

(7) A caching provider shall not be criminally liable for the automatic, intermediate or temporary storage of information where the caching was performed for the sole purpose of making the onward transmission of the information to other users of the service upon their request more efficient if the caching provider—

(a) does not modify the information;

(b) complies with conditions of access to the information;

(c) complies with rules regarding the updating of the information, specified in a manner widely recognised and used by industry;

(d) does not interfere with the lawful use of technology, widely recognised and used by industry, to obtain data on the use of the information; and

(e) acts promptly to remove or to disable access to the information it has stored upon obtaining knowledge that the information has been removed from the network at the initial source of the transmission, or that access to it has been disabled, or that a court or an appropriate public authority has ordered such removal or disablement.

(8) A caching provider who contravenes the conditions set out in subsection (7) shall be guilty of an offence and liable to a fine not exceeding level 8 or to imprisonment for a period not exceeding two years or to both such fine and such imprisonment.

(9) An internet service provider who enables access to information provided by a third person by providing an electronic hyperlink shall not be criminally liable with respect to the information if the internet service provider—

(a) promptly removes or disables access to the information after receiving an order from an appropriate public authority or court to remove the link; or

- (b) (b) through other means, obtains knowledge or becomes aware of stored specific illegal information promptly informs the appropriate authority to enable it to evaluate the nature of the information and if necessary issue an order for its removal.

(10) An internet service provider who fails to promptly remove or disable access to information in terms of subsection (9) shall be guilty of an offence and liable to a fine not exceeding level 8 or to imprisonment for a period not exceeding two years or both such fine and such imprisonment.

(11) Any service provider who knowingly enables access to, stores, transmits or provides an electronic hyperlink to, any information with knowledge of the unlawfulness of the content of any such information shall be guilty of an offence and liable to a fine not exceeding level 14 or to imprisonment not exceeding a period of ten years or to both such fine and such imprisonment.

379D Jurisdiction

(1) A court in Zimbabwe shall have jurisdiction to try any offence under this Act where the offence was committed wholly or in part—

- (a) within Zimbabwe or by any person in or outside Zimbabwe using a computer or information system or device, software or data located in Zimbabwe; or
- (b) on a ship or aircraft registered in Zimbabwe; or
- (c) by a national or permanent resident of Zimbabwe or a person carrying on business in Zimbabwe, whether or not the offence is committed in Zimbabwe; or
- (d) by a national or permanent resident of Zimbabwe or a person carrying on business in Zimbabwe and the offence is committed outside Zimbabwe, if the person's conduct also constitutes an offence under the law of the country where the offence was committed and harmful effects were caused in Zimbabwe; or
- (e) by any person, regardless of the location, nationality or citizenship of the person—
  - (i) using a computer or information system or device, software, or data located within Zimbabwe; or directed against a computer or information system or
  - (ii) device, software or data located in Zimbabwe.

379E Admissibility of electronic evidence

(1) In any criminal proceedings for an offence in terms of this Act, evidence generated from a computer system or by means of information and communications technologies or electronic communications systems shall be admissible in court.

(2) In assessing the admissibility or evidential weight of the evidence, regard shall be given to—

- (a) the reliability of the manner in which the evidence was generated, stored or communicated
- (b) the integrity of the manner in which the evidence was maintained;
- (c) the manner in which the originator or recipient of the evidence was identified; and
- (d) any other relevant factors.

(3) The authentication of electronically generated documents shall be as prescribed in rules of evidence regulating the integrity and correctness of any other documents presented as evidence in a court of law.

(4) This section shall apply in addition to and not in substitution of any other law in terms of which evidence generated by computer systems or information and communications technologies or electronic communications systems or devices may be admissible in evidence.

379F Forfeiture

A court convicting any person of an offence under this Act may order the forfeiture to the State of—

- (a) any money, asset or property constituting or traceable to the gross proceeds of such offence; and
